Founder, framework author, and Senior Full-Stack Engineer with 10 years in production software. I build things I care about — tools for musicians, declarative web frameworks, and high-performance backends — and back that up with a decade of fintech, ed-tech, and enterprise work. Applied Mathematics background; writing on my blog guseyn.com. Occasionally use LLM tools as a research aid to explore ideas and sanity-check theories — not as a substitute for engineering.

Ventures & Passions

Unison (Founder / CTO, 2019 – Present) — Platform that turns plain-text descriptions into sheet music. Long-running passion project at the intersection of music, notation, and software. Stack: Node.js, MongoDB, SVG, Markdown, EHTML. Working toward open-sourcing Unilang, a language for describing music in words.

InstruxMusic (Tech Lead, 2024 – Present) — Helping music schools and instructors run their business: scheduling, lesson tools, video chat, Stripe payments, brand builder. Built the core platform solo in under 3 months using my own frontend and backend tooling; involved in product, pricing, and business decisions.

EHTML (Creator) — Declarative frontend framework: custom HTML elements that handle routine client-side behaviour so you write less JavaScript. Used in Unison, InstruxMusic, and open source. EHTML 3 Demo (2026).

Nodes.js (Author) — Procedural Node.js backend framework with Cluster API over HTTP/2. The backend I reach for when I want speed and control without framework bloat.

Music & writing — Guitar and ukulele covers; working on an online book, Guitar by Notes (sample chapter).
